

Demergers - an option to pass your business to your children

As a business owner, it can often be difficult to decide how best to hand over the running of the company to future generations.

Not only is timing critical, the perception amongst suppliers, customers and employees, has to be taken into account. Business owners will also need to consider what form of management structure or control the next generation will operate under.

Read more in Tim's latest article explaining your options.

by Tim Field

Divorce & the family-owned business

by Claudia Hubert

Managing conflict in family businesses

by Kevin Sullivan

What is business property relief?

by Leah Woodnott

In case you missed it

- Succession and protecting the farm
- Employment in a family owned business
- New head of leasehold enfranchisement at Birkett Long
- Can I leave gifts to charities in my will?

For some free advice

just register