

The Election

Times have changed. With a new government comes new implications for various laws. Our full-service firm provides comprehensive business and personal law services to secure the best outcomes for our clients.

This month's newsletter explores five legal areas directly affected by new policies. We discuss Capital Gains Tax and its impact on assets in your will, the new government's impact on SEN law, proposed employment law updates, the government's intentions for the environment and energy sector, and changes affecting the Health & Social Care sector.

We are also excited to announce our newly redesigned website, which will make all our content and updates as valuable to our clients as possible.

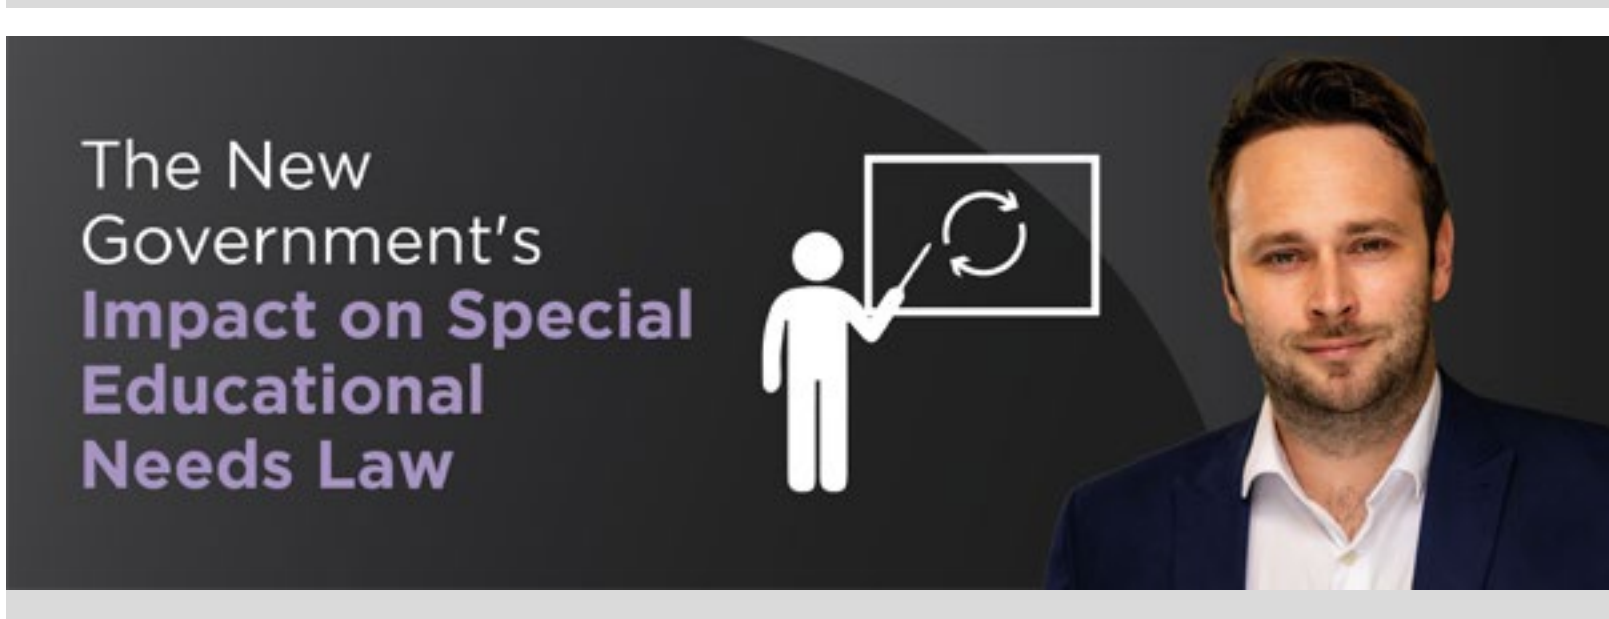

Our solicitors are ready to help you navigate the new legal landscape with your assets and business in tow.

The Impact of Government Changes on Capital Gains Tax

With the new government in place, changes to CGT could be made. Ben Parmenter examines the impact on profits from property sales, investments, and other assets. Read more here

by Ben Parmenter

Thomas Emmett explores how the government might affect children with SEN and the pledges to enhance inclusivity and expertise in mainstream schools. Read more here

by Thomas Emmett

Impact of Labour's Victory on Employment Law

We're about to see some significant shifts in employment law. Karen Morovic outlines how these changes could impact the relationship between employers and workers. Read more here

by Karen Morovic

The Labour manifesto promised significant changes for the energy sector and environmental policies. David Rayner's article explores the potential options. Read more here

by David Rayner

What Labour's Election Win Means for Health and Social Care

After the UK general election, what changes can we expect in health and social care? Tim Field considers the potential future shifts in these sectors. Read more here

by Tim Field

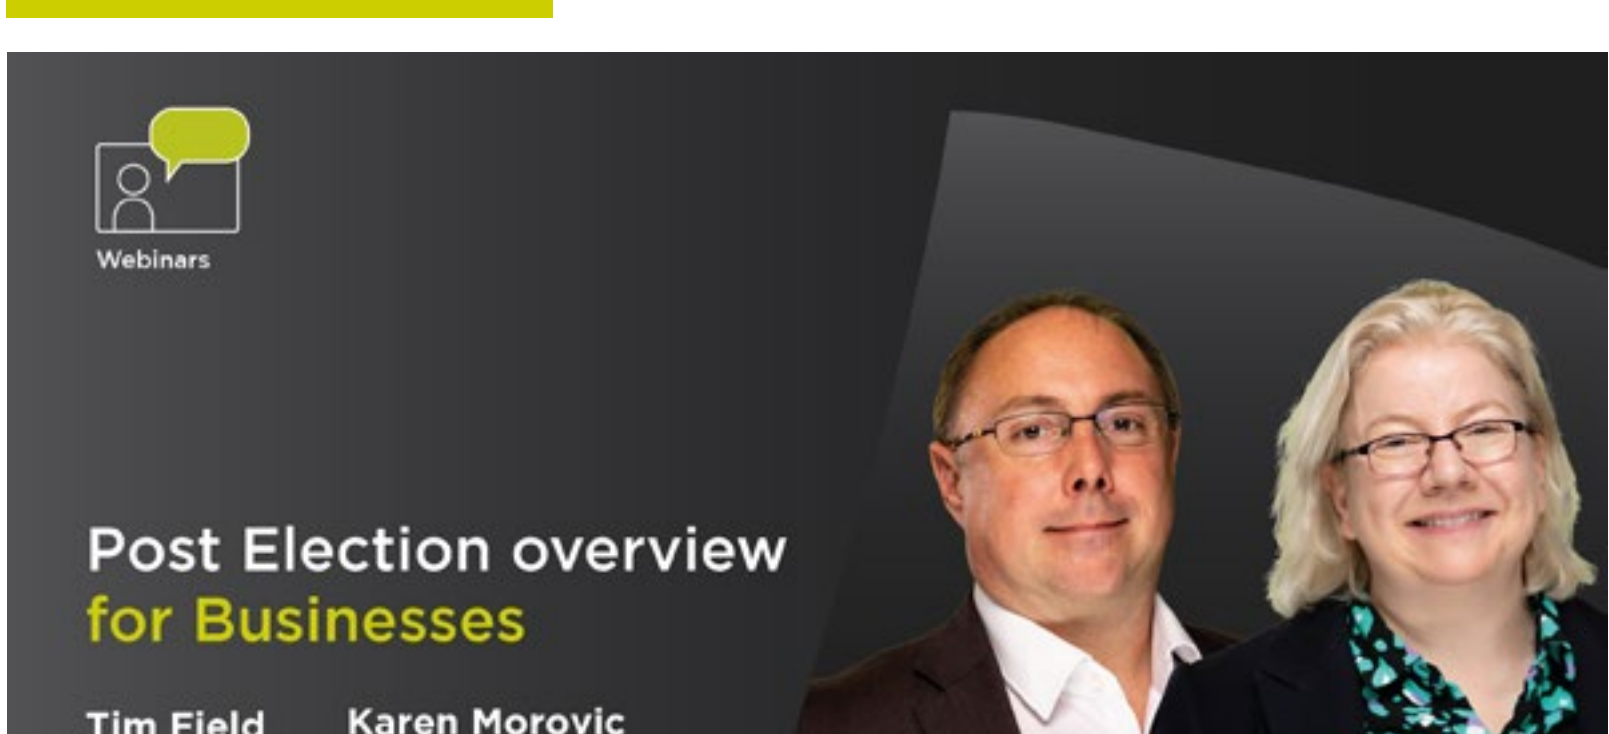

We've been working on something for you...

Log on to birkettlong.co.uk

In case you missed it

- Selecting from a pool of one in redundancy situations
- Myth Busting: Do you need a 20% deposit to get a mortgage?
- Zoe Hosking: A Specialist in Criminal Law and Military Cases
- Labour's Vision for Housing Reform

Webinars

Post Election overview for Businesses

Tim Field
Partner

Karen Morovic
Senior Associate Solicitor